

NEWSPAPER DECISION.

We publish the following for the benefit of those who do not understand the law in such cases:

1. Any person who takes a paper regularly from the postoffice, whether directed in his name or another's, or whether he has subscribed or not—is responsible for payment.
2. If a person orders his paper discontinued, he must pay all arrears, or the publishers may continue to send it until payment is made, and then collect the whole amount whether the paper is taken from the office or not.
3. The courts have decided that, relating to take newspapers and periodicals from the postoffice, or removing and leaving them uncollected for a period of time, is evidence of intentional fraud.

We print elsewhere a text of the report of the State debt investigating committee, as taken from the Knoxville Chronicle. It simply means repudiation.

Sam. Hunt has the finest farm in the county. It produces more rabbits and bigger ones than any other. Sam. says he wants the boys to go out and kill them.

Rev. J. B. Ford preached a sermon Sunday night for the benefit of young men, in which he referred to drinking—going in back doors, and playing billiards. Every boy in the house thought he meant them.

A. Skelton, North side of Public Square, respectfully announces to the public that he has a full line of Family Groceries—including the finest white sugar in town. Also a full line of cigars and tobacco. Give him a call.

The bill to abolish the corporation has passed the Senate and the second reading in the House. The bill will now be almost certain to become a law. Well, let 'er roll, and see who regrets it first.

The only new stock of goods in town is at Sargent & Co.

A lady living on Candas Creek, about 5 miles from town, sold to Sargent & Co., last Saturday, 80 pounds of fresh butter—with chickens and eggs in proportion. If all the country ladies would take pattern after her, we would not hear so much of hard times. The lady we speak of was Mrs. Carr.

Considerable excitement was raised a few days ago by a gentleman finding a human skeleton a few miles from town. It was brought to town and left at Dr. Long's office, where the curious could "view the remains." But it turns out that instead of some one being murdered, a young doctor had left the skeleton there until a more convenient time to remove it.

The trial of S. L. Saul, of London, charged with burning his own house in order to get the insurance money, is now in progress at Knoxville. The first State witness was W. B. Fountain, who tells a very ugly story against Mr. Saul. Mr. Saul was a highly respected gentleman previous to this occurrence.

Three drunk men met a colored boy by the name of Jim Sheller on the railroad above town Sunday night last and demanded that he give the road. He promptly complied. They demanded then that he give up his bottle, and as he had no bottle could not produce it, when one of the parties stabbed him in the shoulder, inflicting a slight wound. He says the men were railroaders.

Rev. W. B. Brown, a respected and revered Presbyterian minister, died at his residence near Maryville, where he was born and raised, Wednesday, February 20th, as we learn from the Index. He was in the 61st year of his age.

Mr. Brown will be remembered by many of the people of Cleveland. He taught school at the academy in this place for many years about the close of the war, and was highly respected by all.

Got His Back Up.

The "Junior" of the Banner comes at us in his last issue like a "thousand of brick," and says we accuse him of owning nothing but a few old clothes. By mistake his name was italicized in the list of signers to the petition to abolish the corporation, and we hereby apologize for said mistake. He assures us he is very wealthy, and froths at the mouth because we happened to misrepresent him. We are aware that he is indeed wealthy, and assure the young man that we did not intend to injure his matrimonial prospects. He is not only rich, but handsome—a regular Brunette—Blondibus—stands 5½ feet in his daddy's shoes, and can turn a double summersault backwards.

He further assures us he is richer than we. Well, suppose he is? He could very easily be all that, then have nothing. He pretends to give a schedule of our worldly goods, but just how much he knows about our private affairs we have not yet been able to ascertain. We think however we'll have him appointed our guardian at the next term of the county court provided he is not in the Insane asylum before that time.

This young Solomon further states that we "dead beat" our way to Texas. While that statement is a falsehood we only wish it were not. We have often wondered why he has had "this back up" for so many years, but now it is plain as day-light—he went to Texas once, and we understand had to tramp part of his time, and now he is mad because we didn't have to walk.

He makes several other assertions in his article that he and everyone else in this community know to be falsehoods, therefore we do not consider them worthy of notice. We must confess, however, that we were somewhat surprised at Mr. "Junior" for making such a fool of himself over nothing, but we suppose it is hereditary. So let us

Take him up tenderly, Handle him with care; He's fashioned so slenderly, So young, but so fair. Speak of his faults lightly—Remember only his virtues; For as a man he is mighty, Though gives not others their dues.

We understand that one night last week some unknown party killed two oxen belonging to Mr. Frank Lowery, and since that time another one has had its tongue cut out, by the same party it is supposed. Mr. Lowery was at Nashville at the time. The English language does not contain epithets enough to be applied to a human being that is so degraded as to take revenge on a person by injuring his property; but there is one thing certain—a man that would do such a thing would burn a house or take the life of an innocent babe. It is to be hoped, that for the benefit of society at least, the perpetrator of the deed will be found and punished. Mr. Lowery was at home a few days ago looking the matter up.

Personal.

Mr. W. H. Tonkin, who went to Kansas about three months ago, has concluded that the sunny South is good enough for him and has returned.

Mr. Robert Rogers left on Tuesday for the West. He will look at Texas and Kansas.

Miss Fannie Brown, of Greenville, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Arthur Traynor, of this city.

Miss Lura Hoss, of Jonesboro', and Miss Katie Brabson, of Athens, who have been visiting the Misses Hughes, have returned to their respective homes.

Miss May Johnston and Miss Nora Hardwick, of this city, left last night to attend Martha Washington College at Abingdon, Va.

Mr. Brown, of the Knoxville Chronicle, was in the city yesterday looking after the interest of that journal.

Texas groans over the number of its thieves, murderers and scoundrels. There are now in the State, it is said, an average of four murders per diem, while the government is so weak that it does not try to protect its own witnesses on the stand. Lately a State's witness in a murder case was knocked down and stabbed in the streets of Palestine by half a dozen friends of the murderer. In other counties the shooting and assassination of State's witnesses is now of almost weekly occurrence. Great fault is found with the inefficiency of Gov. Roberts' administration. It started out by revoking all rewards for the apprehension of murderers offered by its predecessor, and openly declared that it is not its policy to spend any money to bring back into Texas any fugitives from justice—American.

Mr. J. H. Walker, of McMinn county is teaching a writing school in Cleveland. He has quite a large class.

Something from Dayton.
Editor of Herald:—As some of your readers may want to hear something from this quarter of "God's moral vineyard," I propose to give you a short sketch. The health of this section is good, with the exception of sore-throat, or diphtheria; no one has died with it yet. It would be an unpardonable crime if I failed to say something of our town. We have the biggest little town you never saw. We have two hotels—the Thompson house and the Abel house; four dry goods houses and one drugstore, with the prospect of a family grocery soon; two blacksmith shops, one shoe-shop, two saddler shops and two doctor shops. The place is full of workmen of all kinds "and still they come." Every day or two you hear of some one here wanting a house to move into. If there had been twenty empty houses here new year's day, they could have been rented at this. Some one is building all the time. There have been some half a dozen houses put up in the last year, besides a great deal of repairing.

Some men have been getting out ties for the Cincinnati Southern, but work has not begun on the grade within less than six miles from here, and it is supposed it will be a month or more before work is commenced here.

Corn is worth 40 cents, and it is thought there is not enough in the country for home consumption: bacon is worth from 3 to 7 cents, and flour 2½ and 3 cts. More anon.

Newspapers and Education.

A school teacher who had been a long time engaged in his profession and witnessed the influence of newspapers upon the minds of a family of children writes as follows:

I have found it to be an universal fact, without exception, that those scholars, of both sexes and of all ages who have access to newspapers at home when compared with those who have not, are:

1. Better readers, excellent in pronunciation and consequently read more and more understandingly.
2. They are better spellers, and define with ease and accuracy.
3. They obtain a practical knowledge of geography in almost half the time it requires of others, as the newspapers have made them acquainted with the locality of the important places, of nations and their doing on the globe.
4. They are better grammarians, for having become so familiar with every variety of style in the newspapers, from the common-place advertisement to the finished and classical oration of the statesman; they more readily comprehend the meaning of the text, and constantly analyze its construction with accuracy.
5. They write better compositions, use better language, containing more thought more clearly and correctly expressed.
6. Those young men who have for years been readers of newspapers are taking the lead in debating societies, exhibiting a more extensive knowledge upon a greater variety of subjects, and expressing their views with greater fluency, clearness and correctness.

An Extra Session of Congress.

A proclamation of the President calling for an extra session of Congress, to assemble on the 15th inst., was issued Tuesday. The proclamation recites that an extra session is necessary for the reason that the Forty-Fifth Congress adjourned without making the usual and necessary appropriations for the Legislative, Executive and Judicial expenses of the Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1880, and without making the usual and necessary appropriations for the support of the army for the same fiscal year.

Valgar Newspapers.

It must please heads of families whose wives and children read the Cleveland Banner, to observe the language it uses in its editorial quarrels. It is more instructive to look at "pictures" than to read billingsgate. A paper should be as chaste in language as in thought and not teach the rising generation such gross epithets as our good, though sometimes weak friend of the Banner uses when he loses his temper. Editors should think of the dignity of their calling and keep their papers free from all such unflattering and injurious language.—Chattanooga Commercial.

The court house at Maryville has been burned. The fire was accidental. Nearly all the records were saved.

An Undeniable Truth.

You deserve to suffer, and if you lead a miserable, unsatisfactory life in this beautiful world, it is entirely your own fault and there is only one excuse for you,—your unreasonable prejudice and skepticism, which has killed thousands. Personal knowledge and common sense reasoning will soon show you that Greene's August Flower will cure you of liver complaint or dyspepsia, with all its miserable effects, such as headache, palpitation of the heart, sour stomach, habitual constiveness, dizziness of the head, nervous prostration, low spirits, &c. Its sales now reach every town on the Western Continent and not a Druggist but will tell you of its wonderful cures. You can buy a sample bottle for 10 cents. Three doses will relieve you.

A Valuable Work.

The Pictorial History of the United States, from the Discovery of the American continent to the present time; with a complete history of the Centennial Exhibition. By Jas. D. McCabe, Author of "A Manual of General History," "The Great Republic," &c.

It is a well-known fact that the great mass of our people are compelled to rely for their knowledge of the history of their country, upon the outline works intended for the use of schools, which by their very nature are brief; designed for the comprehension of children, and in every way unsuited to the adult mind. There has long been felt a genuine want of the history of the United States, covering the whole period from the discovery of the Continent to the present day, and presenting in a succinct and comprehensive form the history of our country through its various periods, from a higher and more thoughtful standpoint than would be proper in a school history. The demand we are happy to say is satisfactorily met in "The Pictorial History of the United States," a work which is evidently destined to take rank as the Standard History of our country. The author, Jas. D. McCabe, is an able and well known historical writer.

We most heartily commend this work to our readers. It is no dry mass of details, no bombastic effort to inflame the national pride, but a clear, vivid, and brilliant narrative of the events of our history from the discovery of the American Continent to the present day. It gives a most interesting account of the Indians of North America, from the time of the coming of the white men. The voyages of Columbus, the explorations of the different nations of Europe, and the wanderings of the Spaniards in search of gold and immortal youth, are told with graphic power. The story of the revolution is related with all the interest of a romance; then follows a clear and accurate account of the formation of the Federal Constitution, the Second War with England, the Mexican War, and the events of our history up to the commencement of the Civil War. The History of the Great Civil War is related with intense vigor, and with strict fidelity to truth. The author, written with calmness and impartiality, and pleads the cause of no section or party. The books contain a complete account of the Centennial Exhibition.

It is comprised in one large and handsome volume, of over 1100 pages, and contains more than 500 fine engravings on steel and wood. The book is issued by the National Publishing Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., Chicago, Ill., and St. Louis, Mo., and Dayton, Ohio, who import it in a guarantee of excellence of the workmanship. The price is low considering the character of the work, and each subscriber is presented with a handsome lithographic engraving of the Centennial Buildings and Grounds. It is sold by subscription only, and Mr. B. F. GREENLEE, who is the authorized agent for this section, is now canvassing for it.
